

Jenny and the Silly Monkeys

Text by Chuck Baker
and Paul Pruitt

Illustrations by Mark Mathre
and Paul Pruitt

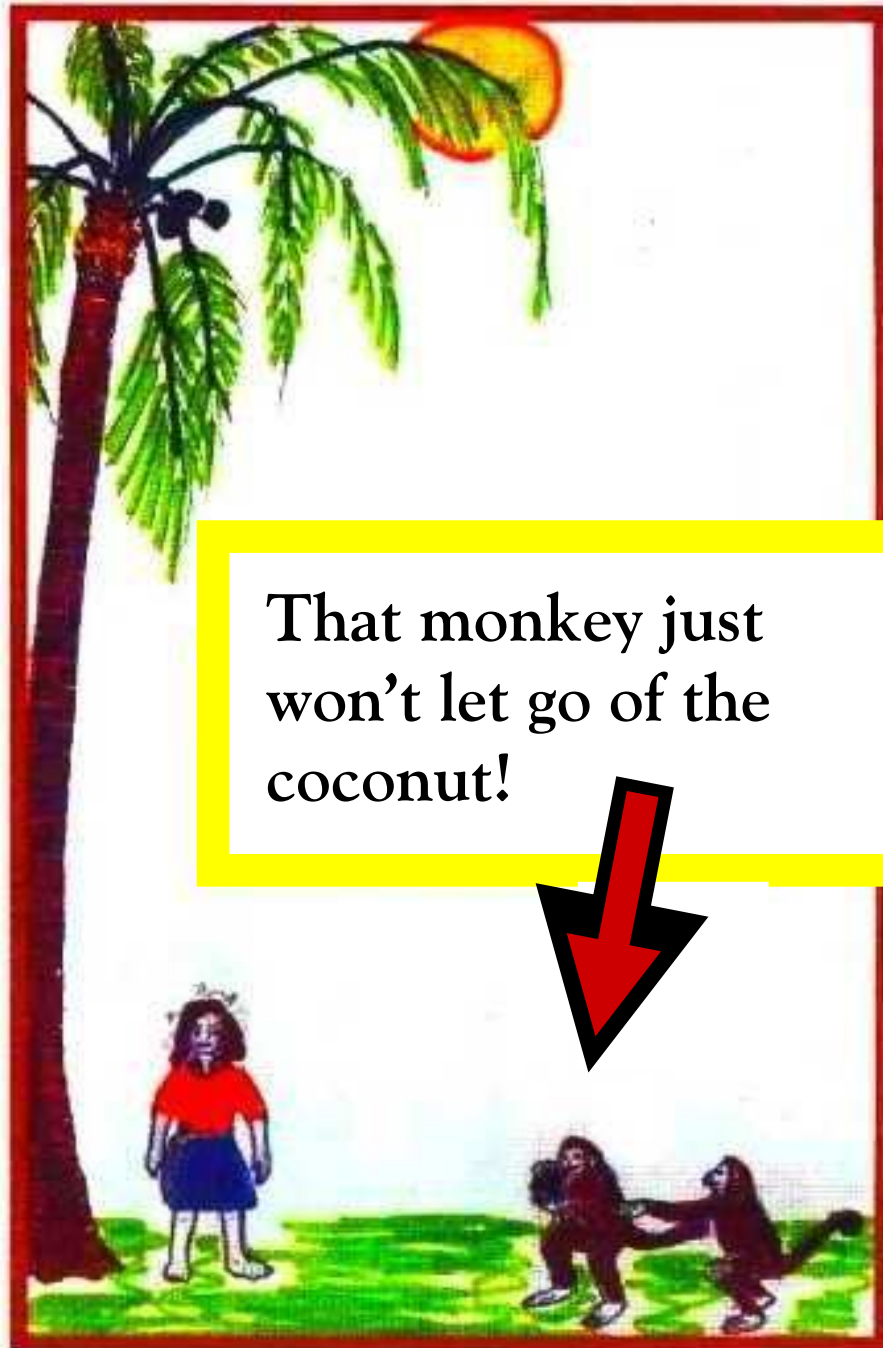

Jenny is
exploring,
hungry as
can be,

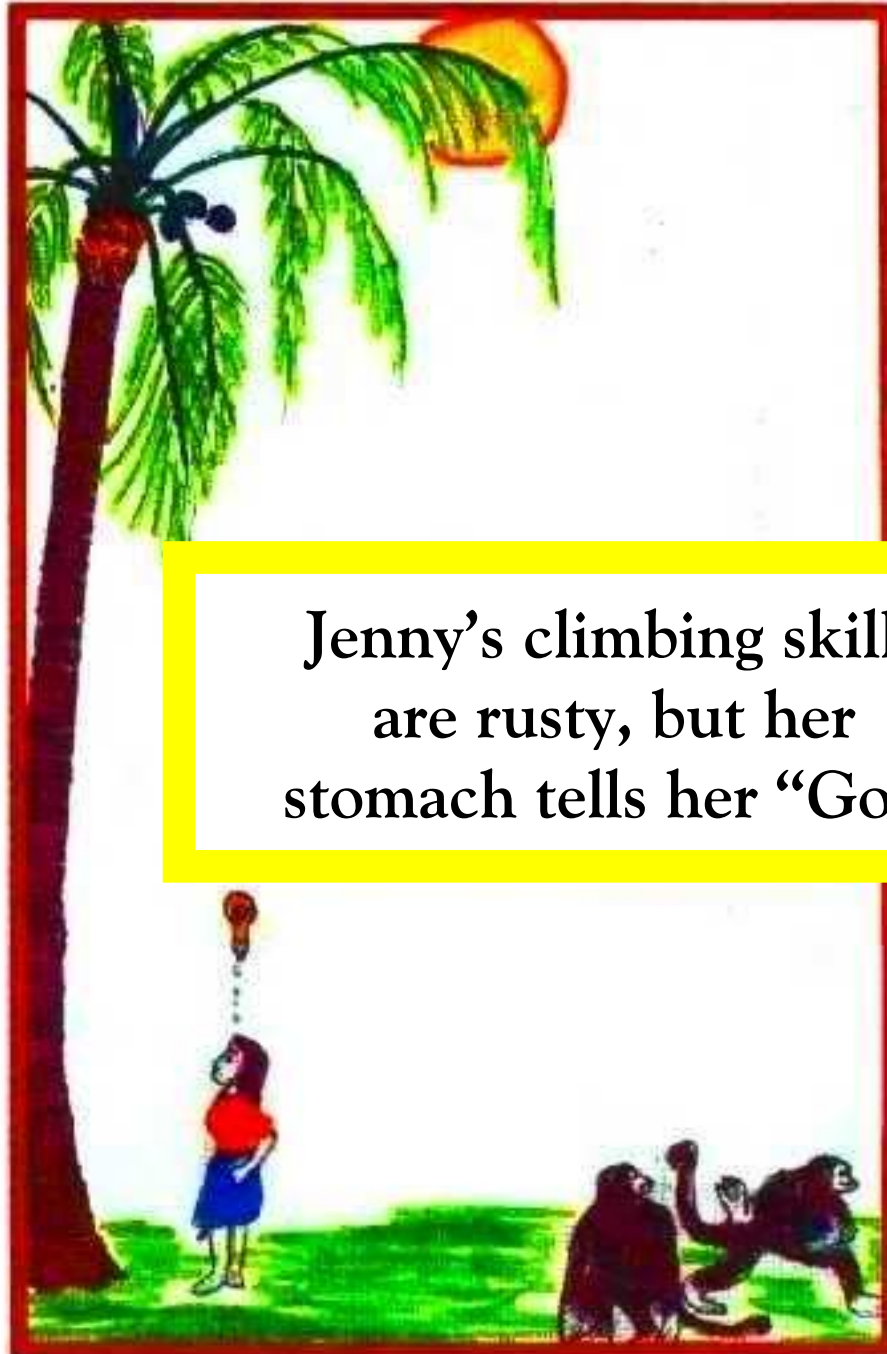

When something
falls from high
above from the
coconut tree!

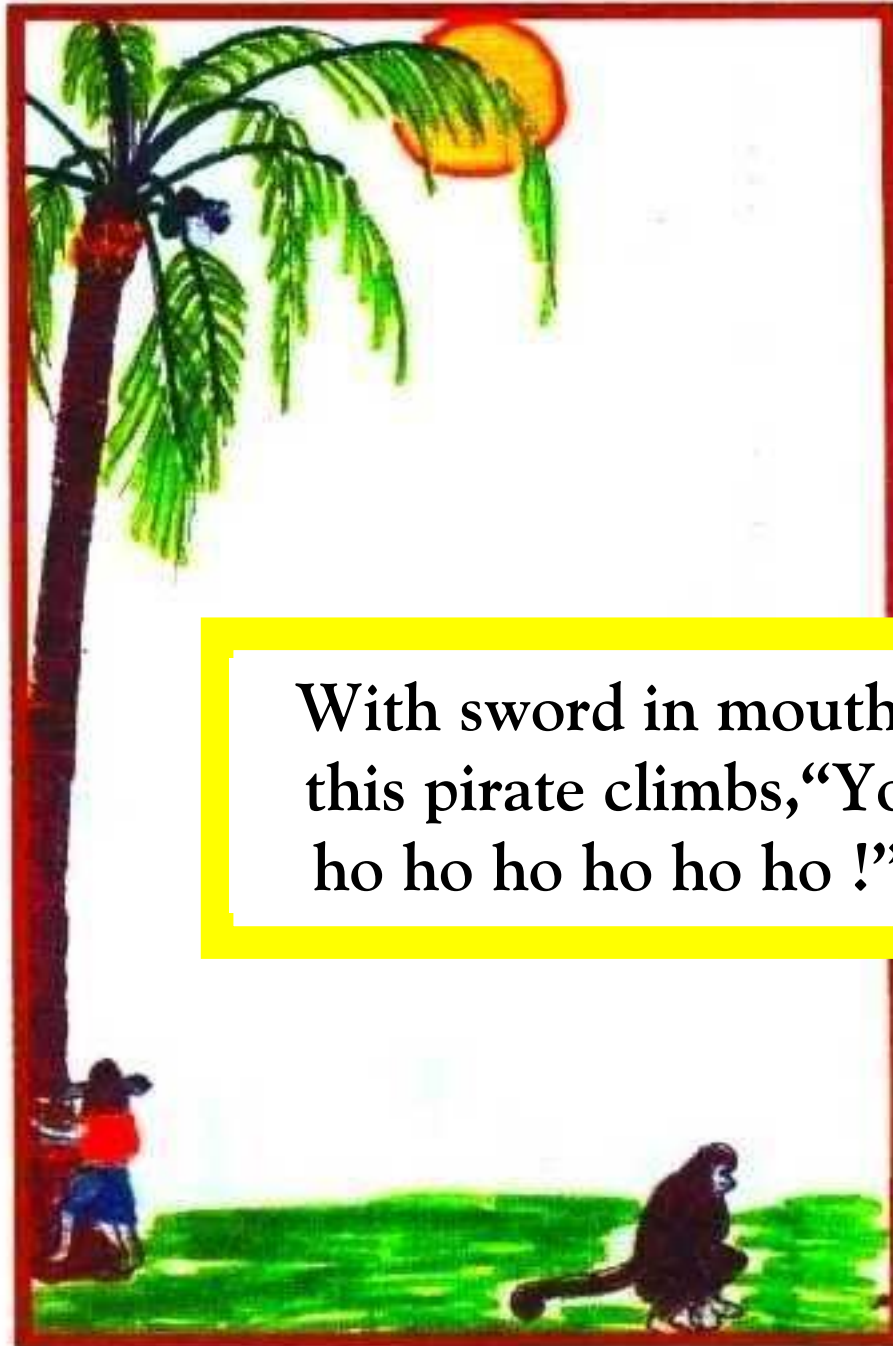

She sees a
monkey catch it,
and she really
wants it, but

That monkey just won't let go of the
coconut!

Jenny's climbing skills are rusty, but her
stomach tells her "Go!"

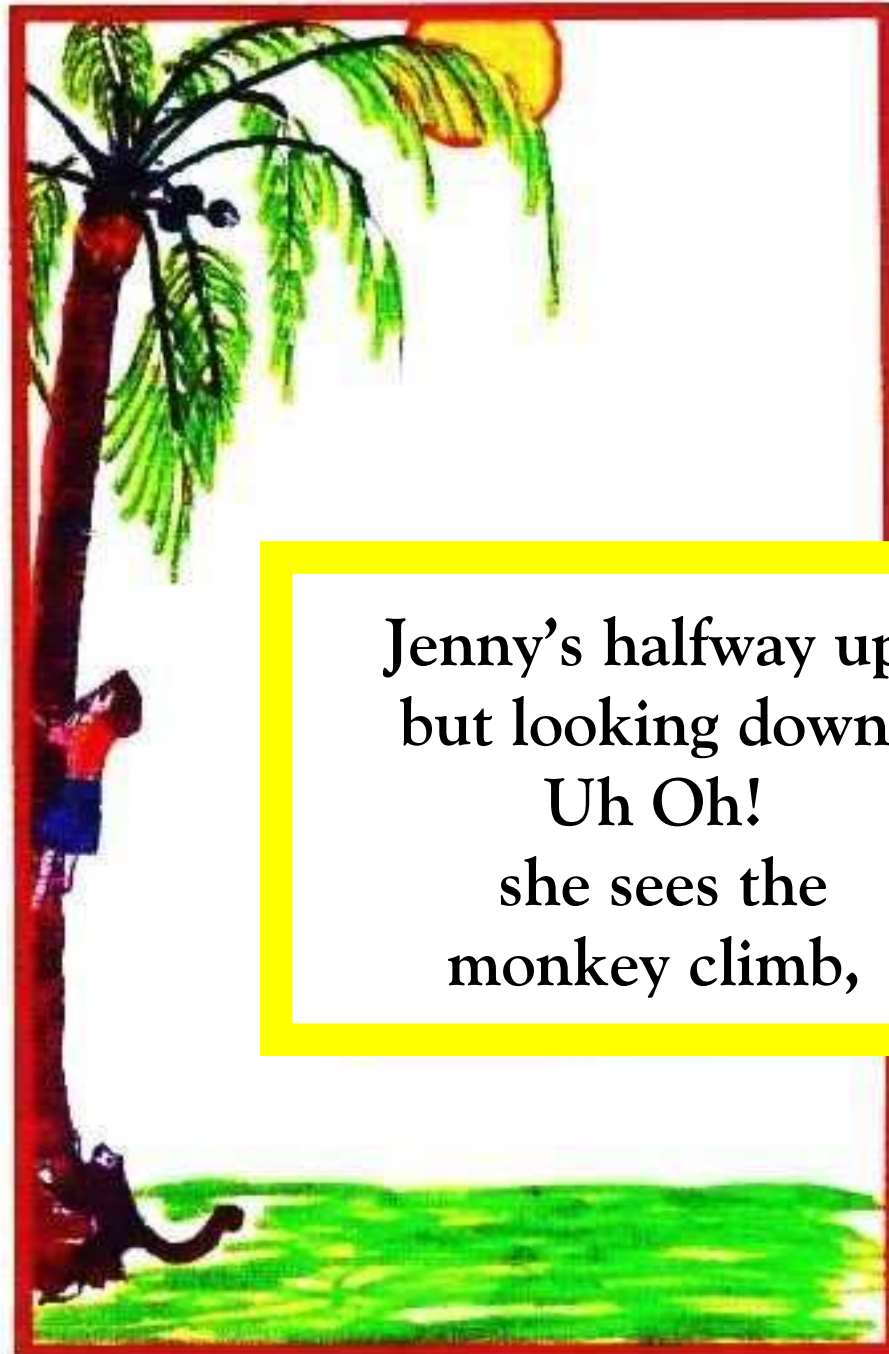

With sword in mouth,
this pirate climbs, "Yo ho ho ho ho ho ho !"

The climbing isn't
easy, but she thinks
of the sweet taste,

And if the monkey gets them first - what a
bother, what a waste!

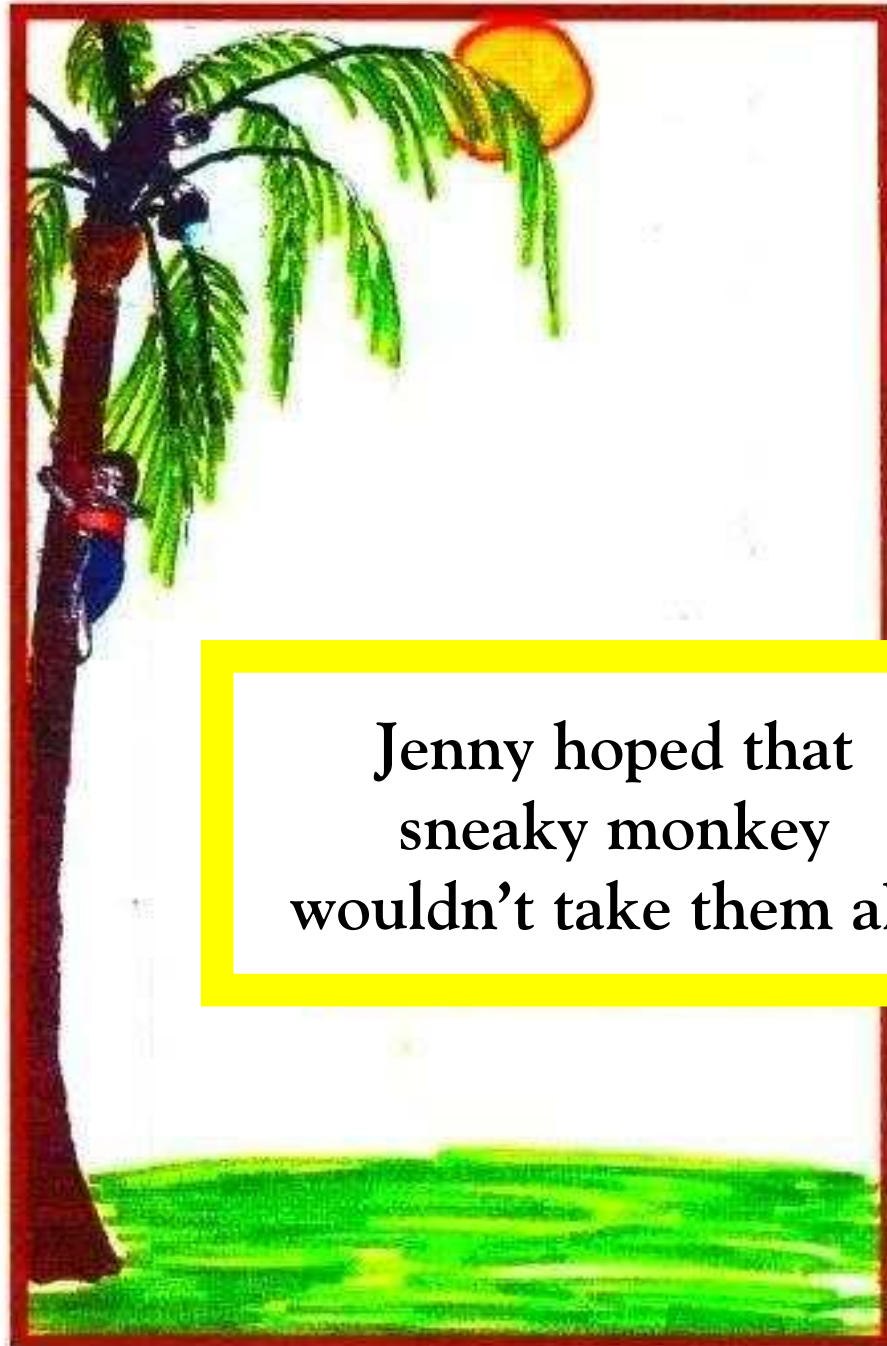

Jenny's halfway up,
but looking down,
Uh Oh!
she sees the
monkey climb,

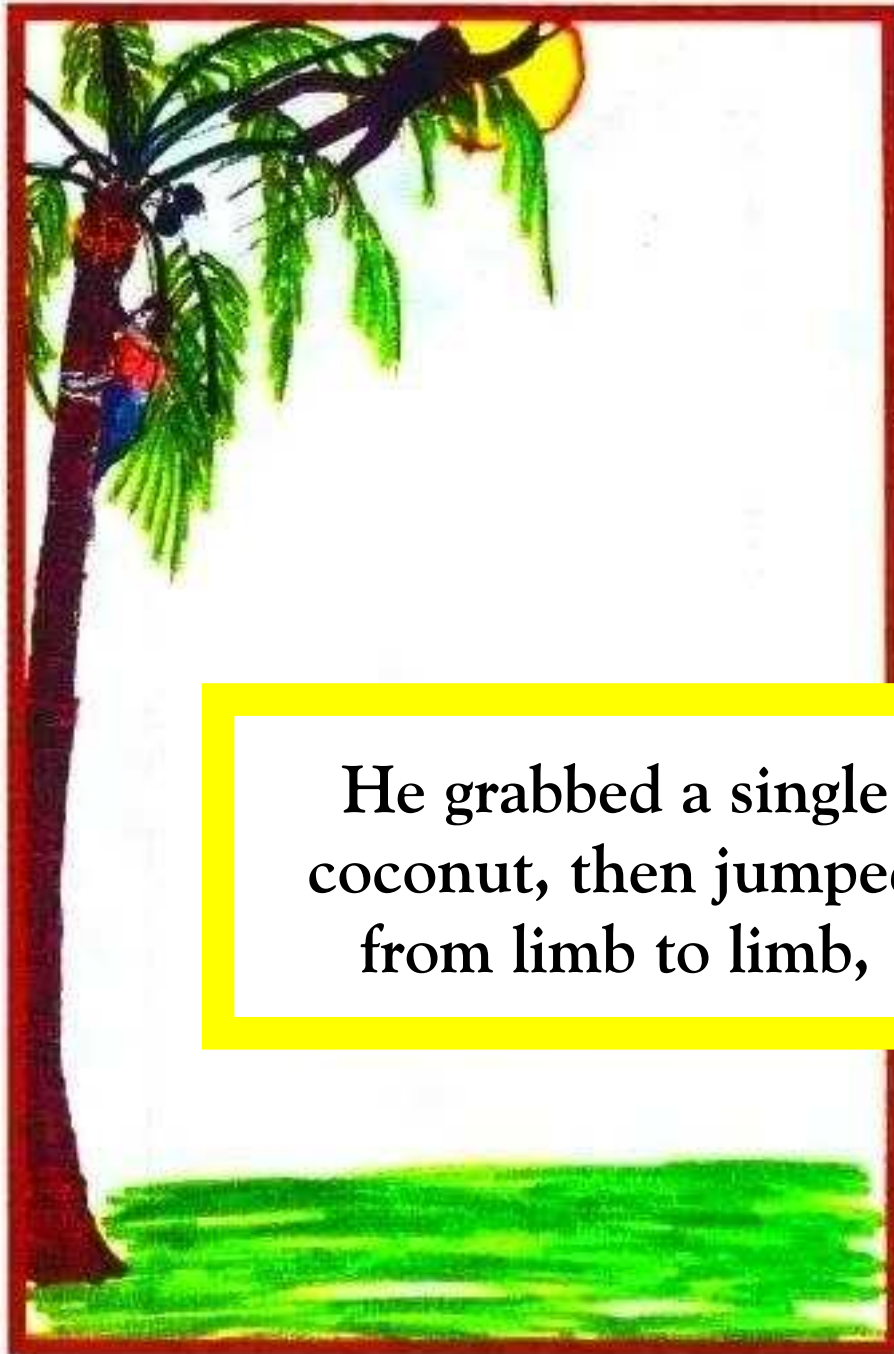

Suddenly she's got
a monkey on her
back, in her life
for the first time!

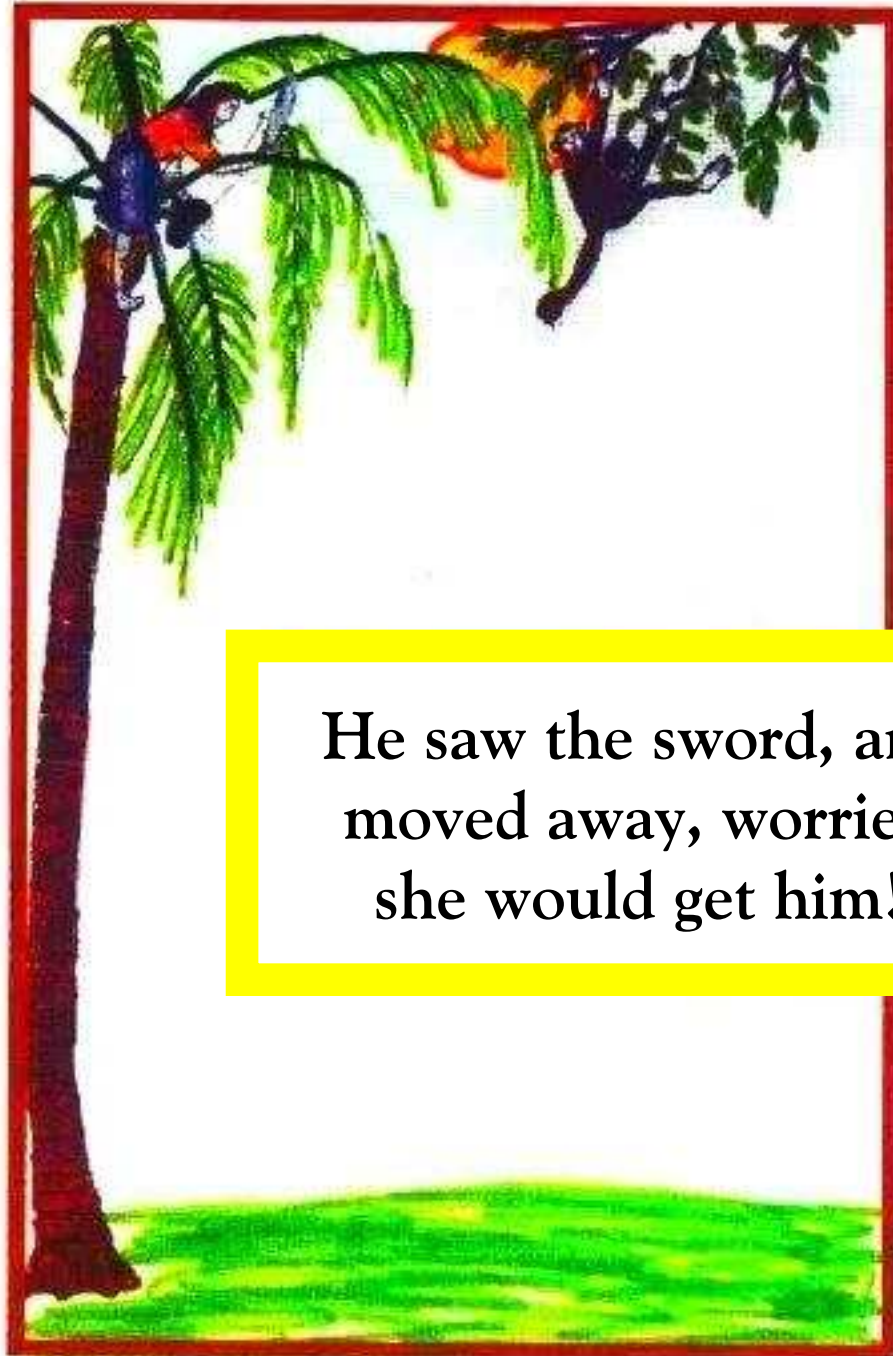

She couldn't climb
much faster, she
didn't want to fall,

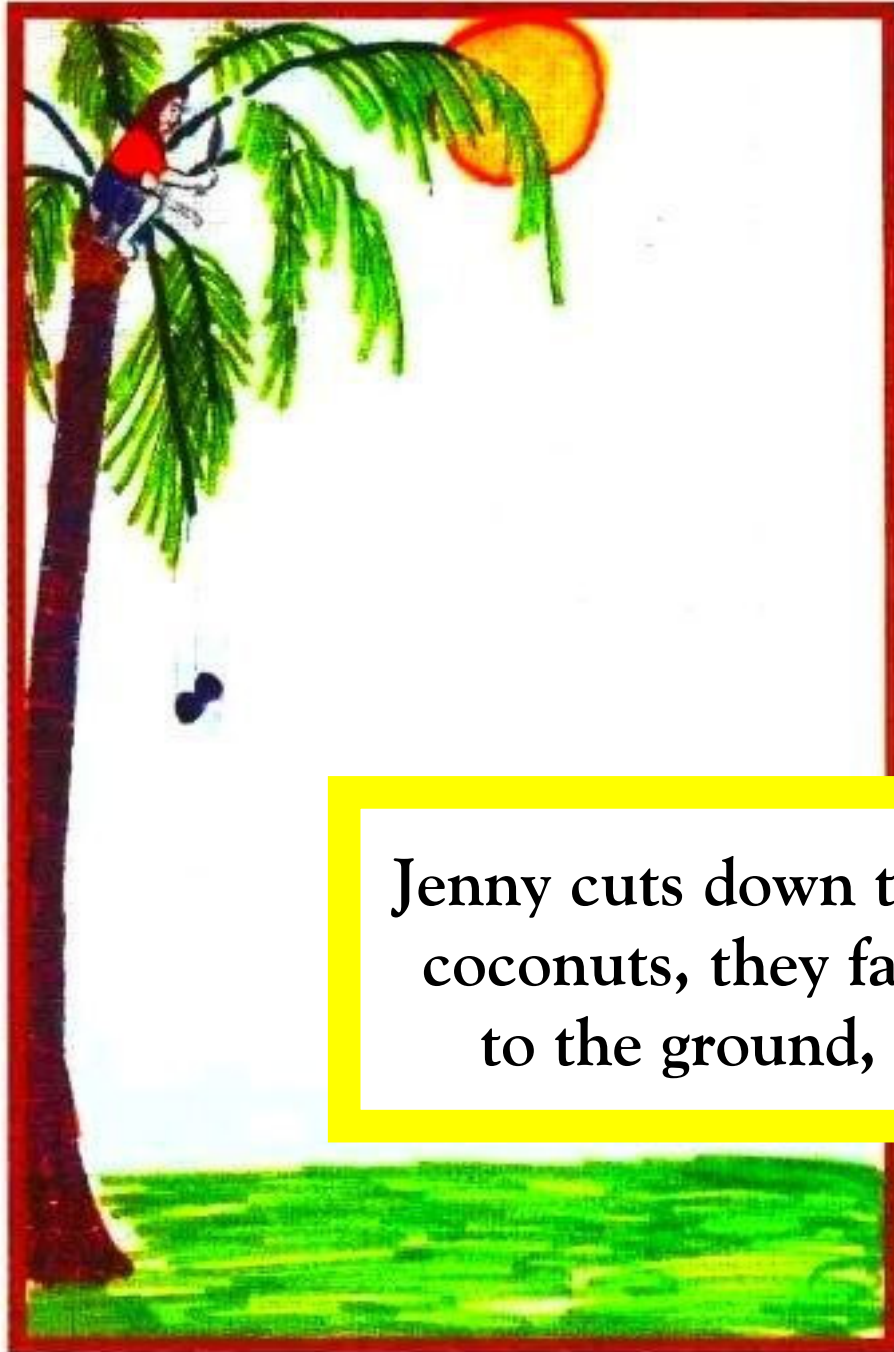

Jenny hoped that
sneaky monkey
wouldn't take them all!

He grabbed a single coconut, then jumped
from limb to limb,

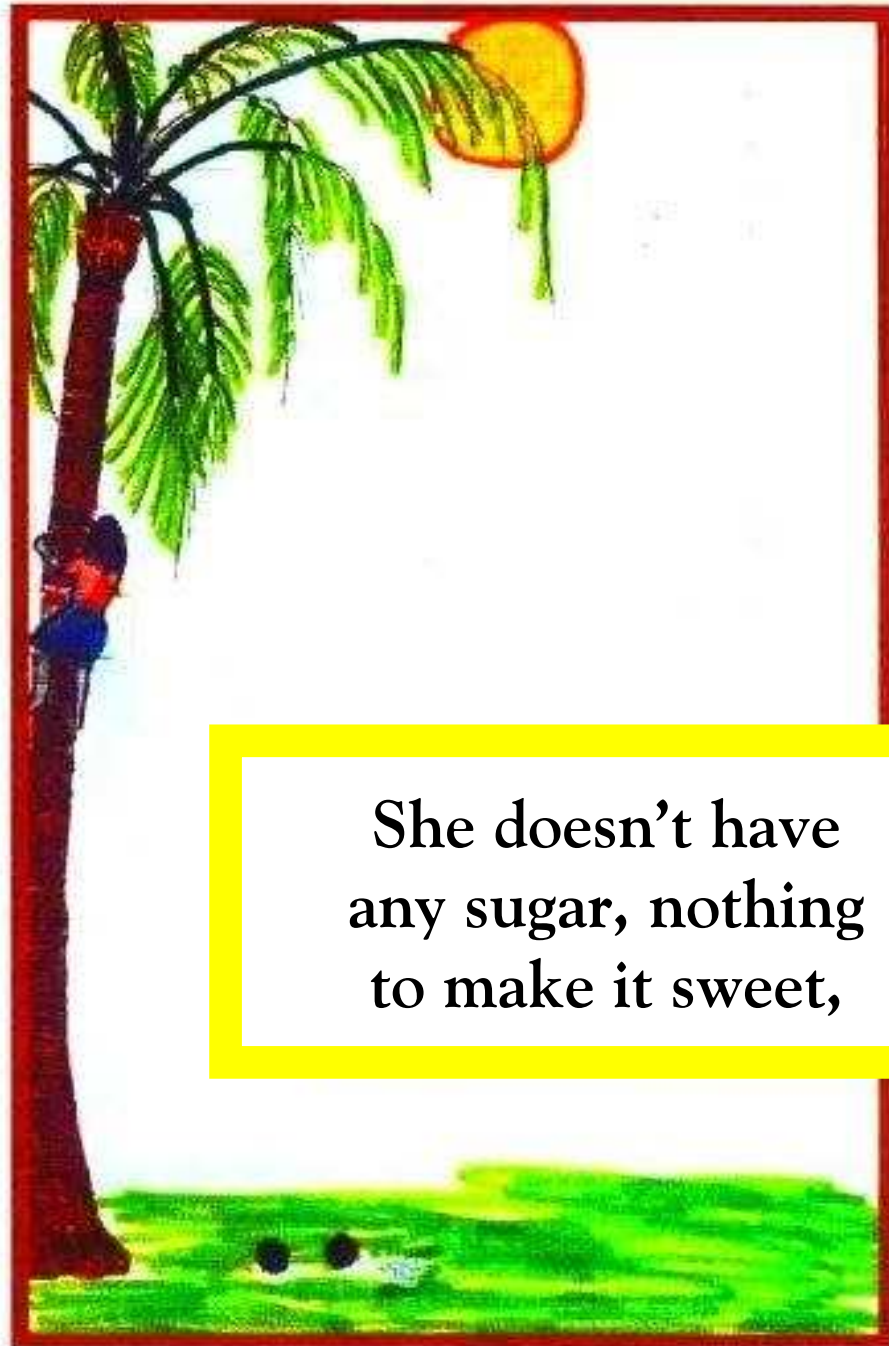

He saw the sword, and
moved away, worried
she would get him!

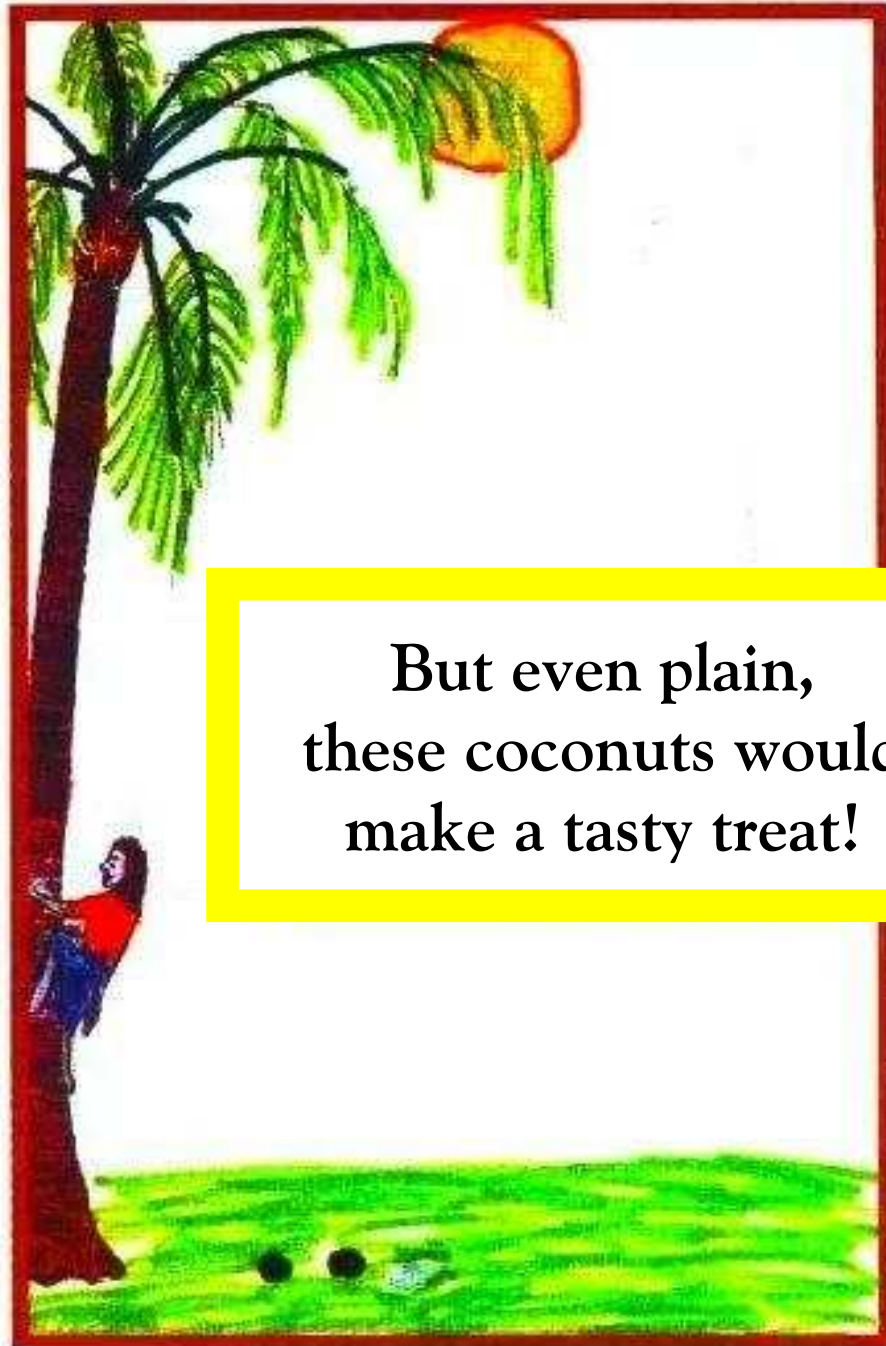

Jenny cuts down the
coconuts, they fall
to the ground,

What's better
yet, the monkeys
are nowhere
to be found!

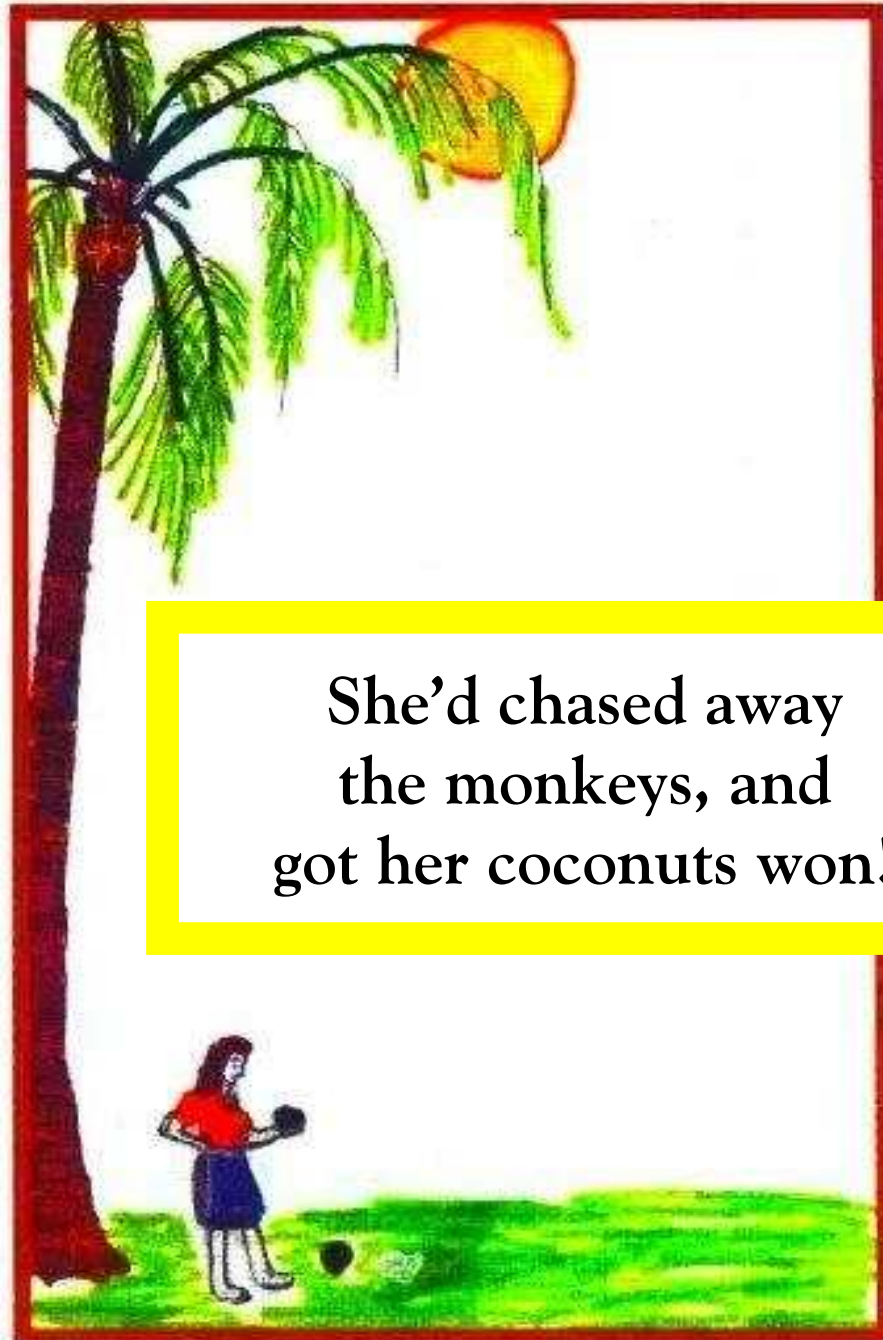

She doesn't have
any sugar, nothing
to make it sweet,

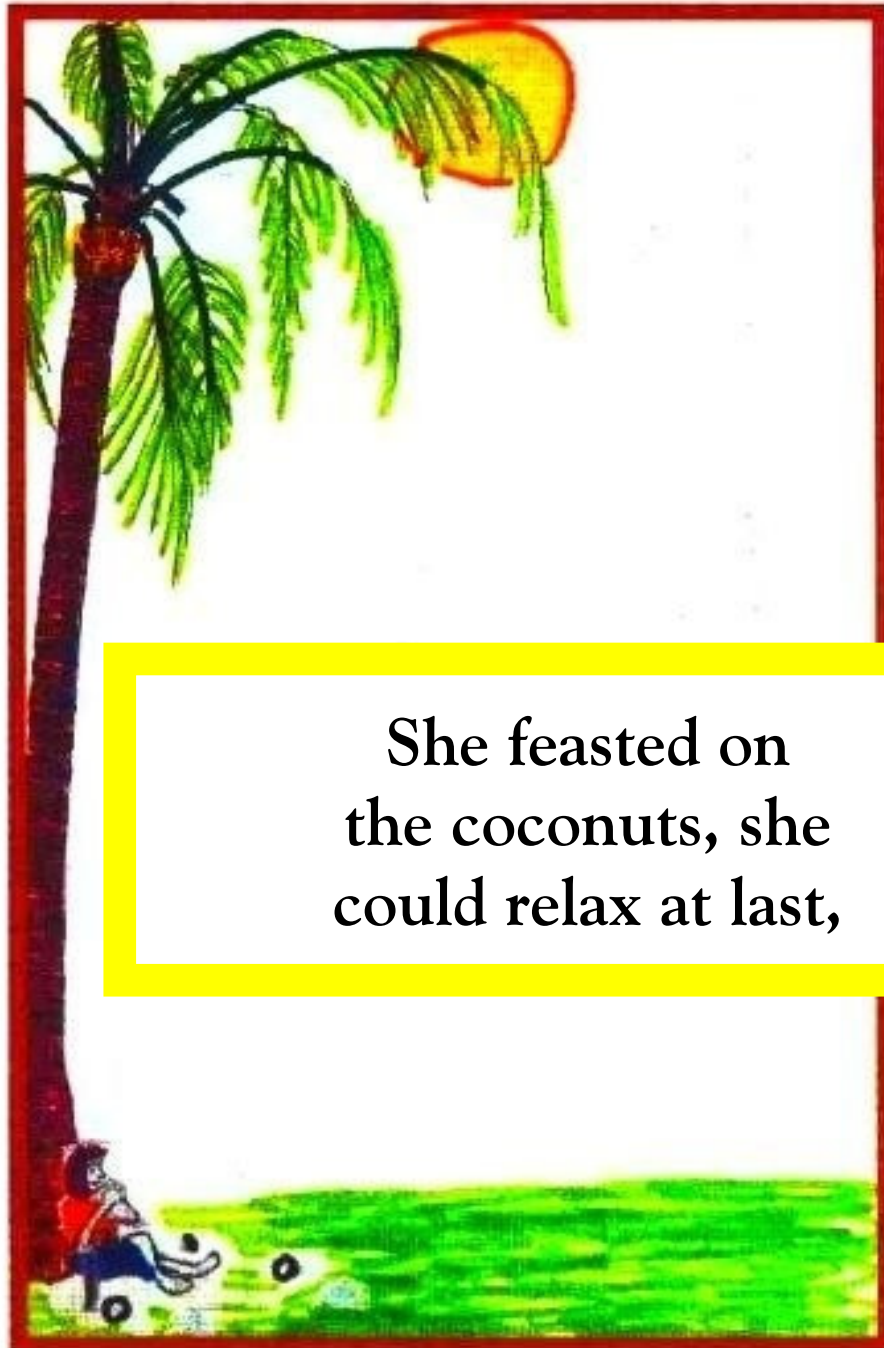

But even plain,
these coconuts would
make a tasty treat!

She wished she had a photo of what
she had just done,

She'd chased away
the monkeys, and
got her coconuts won!

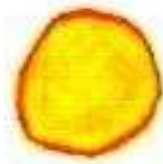

She feasted on
the coconuts, she
could relax at last,

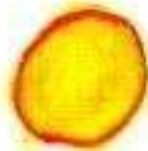

But them noisy
monkeys shattered
the peace real fast!

They'd made cracks in the coconuts, and now
their hands were stuck,

If they would let go of the fruit inside, they'd have much better luck!!! I could catch one quite easily, if I wanted a pet or a friend, But seeing how silly these monkeys are, I think this is The. . .

End

